Chris Patel adopts a multi-disciplinary approach to provide theoretical, methodological and empirical evidence on various aspects of business and accounting across countries such as Australia, China, Germany, Indonesia, India, Malaysia, Fiji and Japan. His research program has attracted both international and national research grants. This global research strength attracts quality PhD students and visiting scholars from countries such as China, Japan, India, Indonesia, Italy, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Sweden, Denmark and Germany. Since 2008, he has successfully supervised nine PhD students to completion. Each of the successful PhD students has received excellent examiners' reports. Scholars come to Macquarie to work under his supervision on various research projects for periods ranging from two weeks to two years. He has mentored visiting scholars from Pune University (India), Wuhan University (China), Nanjing Audit University (China), University of Torino (Italy), University of Nagoya (Japan), Yokohama University (Japan), Joenköping International Business School (Sweden), and Aalborg University (Denmark). He has extensive university teaching experience and has acted as an adviser to Asian Development Bank, World Bank and World Health Organization. He has been a visiting scholar at universities in the USA, UK, China, India, Malaysia, Fiji and Canada.

Chris has published extensively in leading scholarly journals and has published six research monographs with leading publishers such as Emerald. He is on the editorial board of scholarly journals including Advances in Accounting, International Journal of Accounting, Auditing and Performance Evaluation, Journal of Applied Management Accounting Research, Journal of Management and Training for Industries (Japan) and Asian Academy of Management Journal. He was the Associate Editor of Journal of International Accounting Research (a journal of the American Accounting Association, International Accounting Section). He has reviewed manuscripts for leading journals including Accounting, Organizations and Society, Accounting, Auditing and Accountability Journal, Behavioural Research in Accounting, International Journal of Accounting, European Accounting Review, Journal of Business Ethics, International Journal of Auditing and Critical Perspectives on Accounting

Chris was a member of the Outstanding Dissertation Award Committee of the International Accounting Section of the American Accounting Association from 2003 to 2005. He delivered the key note address entitled, "A Pacific Perspective on National Health Accounts" at the World Health Organisation Workshop on National Health Accounts in 2007 which contributed to the publication entitled, "Framework for the Development and Institutionalization of National Health Accounts in the Pacific Island Countries", World Health Organization.

Chris has won a number of awards including Macquarie University Outstanding Teacher Award, Macquarie University's Outstanding Community Engagement Award and International Achievement Alumni Award for distinguished service for outstanding contribution to the enrichment of International society through community and professional service. In 2011, he was appointed by the Norwegian Government to the Research Council of Norway responsible for assessing the quality of research grant applications. In November 2015, he was appointed by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC) to assess research grant applications. SSHRS's mandate is to support and develop excellence in research activities in the social sciences and humanities.
